Mathematica Journal

. . . and
The Mathematica® Journal

Look Inside!

Each issue of The Mathematica Journal provides the latest hands-on technical information for all users. Regular columns include:

* The Mathematica Programmer

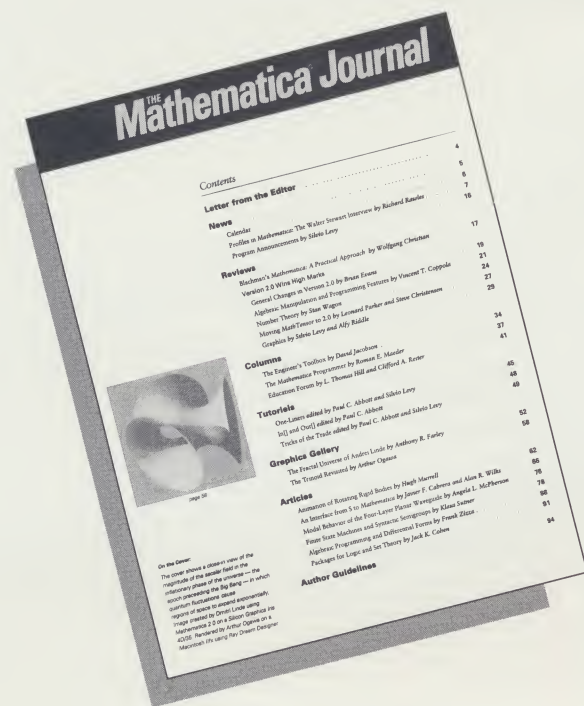

Showing you how to take advantage of Mathematica's powerful programming language.

* From the E-Mail Bag

Our editors comb the electronic newsgroups for tips, suggestions, and questions-and-answers to real-world Mathematica problems.

* Mathematica 101

Newcomers and experienced pros alike are welcome in this one-on-one classroom. Join us as we explore Mathematica's most exciting capabilities.

The Electronic Supplement

The Mathematica Journal is proud to announce The Electronic Supplement – a toolkit of Mathematica notebooks, packages, graphics, and utilities which optionally accompanies each issue. Currently, The Electronic Supplement is available on floppy disk for Macintosh and MS-DOS; more versions will be available shortly.

Don't Miss Out!

Each issue of The Mathematica Journal is filled with: book reviews; tutorial articles; news from Wolfram Research; calendar of upcoming conferences; full-color Mathematica graphics; reviews of complementary products; and much more. Don't miss out, subscribe today!
